Tax Discrimination

With the deadline for filing federal income tax returns just behind us, now is a good time to look at one aspect of the taxing system and hope for remedial legislation before "pay-up" time rolls around again.

We speak of the discrimination against the unmarried person as opposed to those married and filing joint returns. There are serious inequities.

For 1971, the penalty for unmarried taxpayers was reduced because of provisions written into the 1969 Tax Reform Act. But even so, the single taxpayer still pays up to 20 per cent more than a taxpayer filing a joint return.

This inequity will not be resolved, we think, until there is adopted a uniform rate structure for all taxpayers, whether they be married, widowed, divorced or single.

This means that after allowable deductions and exemptions are taken, the same graduated tax rate would be applied to an individual's taxable income, regardless of marital status.

Let's look at some examples of where this different rate structure discriminates against the unmarried person:

A single taxpayer whose taxable income is $12,000 pays $2,630. If he were married and filing a joint return, he would pay $2,160—a penalty of $370.

And the rate on any income over $12,000 and under $14,000 is higher—29 per cent for the unmarried and 25 per cent for the person filing a joint return. And the penalty is stiffer with each higher bracket.

We agree that taxes should reflect differences in the taxpayer's responsibilities for dependent support. But we believe this should be done through exemptions for dependents, not through different tax schedules.—Ft. Smith Southwest Times Record

Family Receives Donations

DALLAS (AP) — The Leo Light family, struck twice by tragedy last week when Mrs. Light and son Robert 11, died, will return from funerals in New Mexico to find sagging finances in better shape.

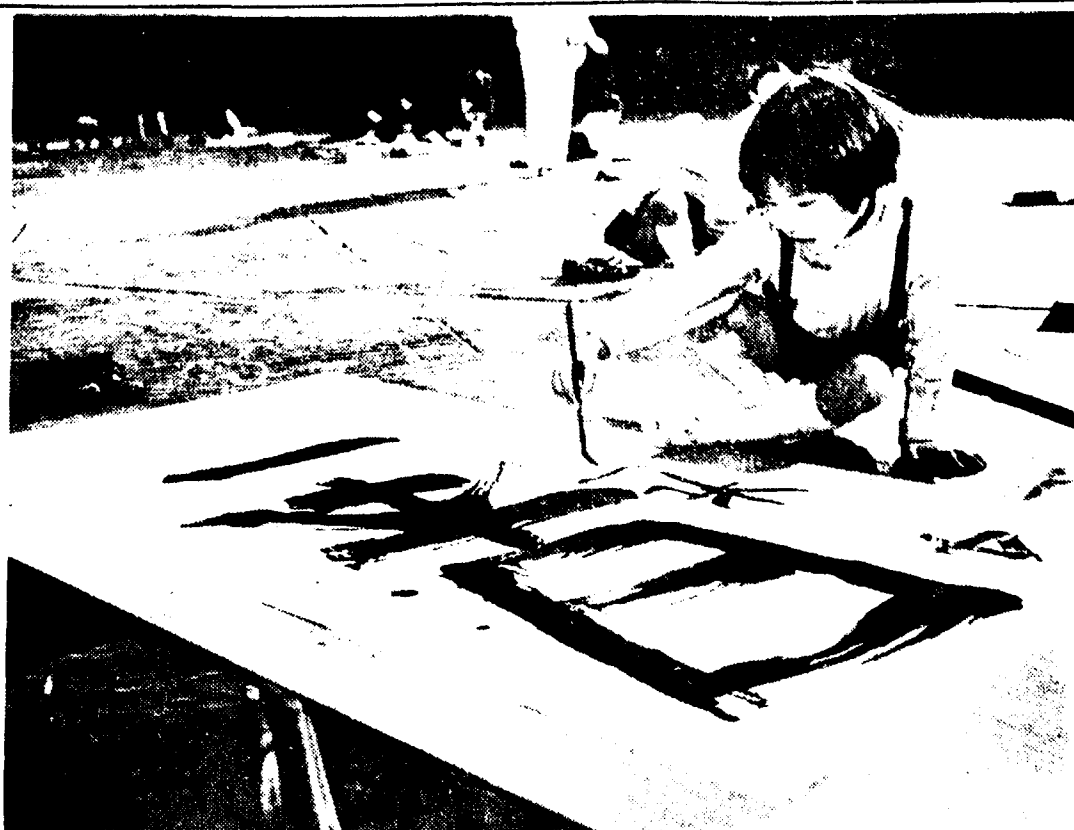

Turst accounts at the American Bank & Trust Co. and Wynnewood State Bank have collected more than $20,000 since they were established last week for the family.

The account at American Bank & Trust, established by the Mark Twain Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association, had received about $6,100, mainly in small contributions.

"They have been $5 and $10 checks mostly," said American vice president Kingsland Smith. "One for $250 is about the largest I've seen."

Drop 'Boy' From Scouts

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Say goodbye to the old Boy Scouts.

Come September they'll be known only as Scouts and many will be sporting bright red berets.

Cub Scout den mothers also will get a new look that includes miniskirts and hot pants as official uniforms.

The Scouts, in convention here, are not only modernizing the uniform, but initiating major changes that will give Scouts a new image and more leadership responsibility that is intended to better prepare them for urban life.

The traditional Boy Scout Handbook is being rewritten to reflect contemporary life and problems. Scouts in the inner city will be taught how to treat rat bites as well as snake bites and how to negotiate a subway system as well as a mountain trail.

"If Scouting is to make the kind of contribution to this country over the next decade that it has for the past 60 years, it must be sensitive to the real needs of our youth everywhere," said Alden G. Barber, national chief scouting executive.

More than 4,000 Scout executives are here for the week-long 62nd annual convention.

The word "Boy" is being dropped because a two-year study found that youths were being turned off by it, a Scout official said. The organization, however, will retain the name Boy Scouts of America.

The study also found that

Ark. Gazette Endorses Tucker

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Gazette Friday endorsed Jim Guy Tucker of Little Rock for the Democratic nomination for state attorney general.

Tucker, 28, prosecuting attorney in the 6th Judicial District, is opposed in the primary by Fort Smith.

"All in all...our preference for the candidacy of Jim Guy Tucker in the Democratic primary is based on a positive and affirmative conviction that he offers outstanding potential for statewide public leadership," the Gazette said in an editorial.

Grants Citizenship

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Parliament has approved legislation conferring Icelandic citizenship on pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy, a Russian defector, and 33 other foreigners.

Justice Minister Olafur Johannesson waived in Ashkenazy's instance a law which requires foreigners becoming citizens of Iceland to take an Icelandic name. Some members of Parliament had protested application of the law to the Russian after the citizenship bill was passed Thursday.

Ashkenazy is married to an Icelandic woman.

Scouts wanted a more modern uniform, more decision-making responsibility and a more flexible system of advancement.

The red beret is already being worn by some inner city troops and its use will be optional. A troop may elect to wear the field cap or even the traditional Smokey-the-Bear hat. The scouting spokesman said, "I have a hunch the beret is going to be very popular."

The neckerchief also becomes optional wear in favor of a casual open collar and the trousers are being restyled along contemporary lines without the red piping on the pockets. Scouts 14 and 15 years old can elect to wear Explorer-type green uniforms instead of khaki.

The merit badges are being redesigned so that all will be

Agnew Sees Improvement in Vietnam

By GAYLORD SHAW

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, just back from Vietnam, met with President Nixon today and later declared "we are coming out of the woods" and blunting the North Vietnamese offensive.

After emerging from a 40-minute session in Nixon's Oval Office, Agnew said South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and Gen. Creighton Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, are confident the South Vietnamese "will hold."

Agnew said he conferred for two hours with Thieu and described him as "relaxed and confident" and "fully in command of the situation."

When the North Vietnamese began their offensive before Easter, Agnew said, there were indications they intended it to last nine months and that their goal was to "take and hold territory to obtain the most advantageous position for negotiations."

But because of the mining of North Vietnamese harbors and heavy air strikes on transportation lines, Agnew said, the North Vietnamese capability for an offensive has been reduced to four months.

This means, Agnew said, "only a couple more months of activity could be sustained" by the North Vietnamese.

After describing morale in Saigon as high, he said South Vietnamese leaders "feel they have turned the corner and are on their way back."

Campaign To Ban Fireworks

By JOHN STOWELL

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness is mounting a public campaign to force a ban on all fireworks, including the "safe-and-sane" variety it claims are among the most dangerous.

The New York-based organization today mailed an appeal to 110 newspapers across the country, and in effect called off its polite truce with the Food and Drug Administration.

The mailings ask editors and readers to demand that "the FDA ban all fireworks, except those used for licensed public displays."

The FDA has issued a proposed regulation to ban all firecrackers with more than two grains of powder, removing a 1940 exemption for farmers who said they needed them to scare birds away from fields. The proposal would not take effect until after the Fourth of July.

FDA officers say they will try to curb further sales of bootleg fireworks by sending out investigators posing as tourists seeking to buy the contraband. The NSPB is particularly miffed at the government's rejection of its 1969 survey on fireworks injuries as "incomplete, vague and of questionable value."

Prepared with the help of the National Fire Prevention Association and the Fire Marshals Association, the 27-page report links fireworks to 1,330 personal injuries including five deaths and 38 cases of lost eyesight.

The report said legal fireworks, including smaller firecrackers, sparklers, fountains and Roman candles "Caused 42 per cent of the total cases, injury cases and property damage cases." Of all the pyrotechnic devices, the Class C firecracker (less than two grains) caused the largest proportion of cases—18 per cent—and accounted for 22 per cent of the injuries and 12 per cent of the property-damage cases.

The FDA's own figures, much of them drawn from newspaper clippings, show eight deaths and 41 injuries attributed to larger Class B fireworks between 1967 and 1970.

"To ban something, you don't just wave a magic wand," said Dale C. Miller, compliance officer in the FDA's Bureau of Product Safety. "Emotion has got nothing to do with one of these banning actions."

The blind-society survey, he said, "was not sufficiently detailed to demonstrate fireworks have a high degree of hazard. There are page after page of tables but they don't enable you to assess the degree of un-

Wallace to Continue Campaign

By MARGARET GENTRY

Associated Press Writer

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — George C. Wallace has given his supporters a thank-you message with a political flavor, and his press secretary says that means the wounded candidate is continuing his presidential campaign.

"I want to thank the people of Alabama for staying with us," Wallace said in a message relayed to newsmen Friday by his press secretary, Billy Joe Camp.

"They are responsible for the new direction in this country because most of the politicians are now sounding like us," the Alabama governor said.

Responding to questions, Camp said the statement could be interpreted as Wallace's first step toward resuming his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

As his third and strongest presidential bid gained momentum, Wallace was struck down by a would-be assassin at a shopping center rally near here Monday. He has yet to learn whether the bullet still lodged in his spinal canal will leave him a permanent cripple.

Camp said there have been no staff strategy sessions with the governor since the shooting.

The medical bulletins Friday had little to add. Doctors said Wallace's legs remain paralyzed and that he is continuing physical therapy to maintain muscle tone and blood circulation.

He was taken off intravenous feeding and given a meal of chicken broth.

Camp said that Wallace expressed appreciation for President Nixon's visit Friday morning. The President called Wallace's morale "quite remarkable."

Meanwhile, authorities continued to probe the circumstances of the attack and the background of Arthur H. Bremer who is charged with the shooting.

Asks for Disaster Declaration

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith has asked for a presidential disaster declaration for five flood-damaged counties and said more needs to be done to prevent future floods.

The counties are Caldwell, Comal, Guadalupe and Hays, which were flooded last week by the Guadalupe and San Marcos Rivers; and Webb, where the Rio Grande left its banks.

Sixteen persons died in the Guadalupe flood at New Braunfels.

Smith said preliminary estimates indicate damage of $15 million to private property and $2.5 million to public facilities.

A presidential declaration permits federal assistance to repair and rebuild public property, provide temporary housing and give financial help to persons who were unemployed because of the floods.

"It seems obvious to me that not enough has been done in these five flooded counties, and perhaps others around the state, to guard against flooding. I will press for adequate flood protection in all areas of Texas to insure that a tragedy of such proportions will not be repeated," Smith said.

Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., has announced the funding of a central water system for Grannis, Ark. The $60,400 loan and $22,500 grant will finance a water system consisting of a deep well, 50,000 gallon storage tank and 4 miles of water distribution line.

The new system will serve 70 homes and other establishments in Grannis.

Americans Becoming Walking Drugstores

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Americans are becoming walking drugstores. One thousand chemicals—usage has doubled since 1955—are now added to the foods he eats to improve their coloring, flavor or shelf life. The average American consumes five pounds of these food additives a year.

U.S. families now eat one out of seven dinners away from home. Families with higher incomes eat out more often, and city dwellers do so more than rural people.

You can bet right now that at least one out of every four or five vehicles on the road will be involved in an accident this year. The economic toll of 22½ million accidents last year was put at $16.35 billion. The same amount of money would build more than 650 thousand $25,000 homes.

One of the most select of all American societies is nonsegregated. It is the Medal of Honor Society, which is made up of some 305 living holders of the nation's highest award for combat bravery. They are the heroic flower of the nation's population of 28 million veterans.

Barnacles are still a serious world maritime problem. In six to eight months after it is launched a ship may acquire a three-inch thick crust of these tiny sea creatures on its hull that can add 100 tons to its weight and cut its speed by 10 per cent.

Farm Bloc Puts Squeeze on Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A massive petition effort seeking major farm-policy concessions from President Nixon is expected to keep rolling despite attempts by the administration to block it.

The drive was initiated by a large Kansas-based grain cooperative and has reached at least a dozen other states.

Movement leaders say their goal is to lay 500,000 signatures at Nixon's doorstep next month, calling for his support of temporary measures "to immediately bolster and stabilize grain prices," and to start work on long-range relief.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz opposes the effort, claiming the administration has done all it can for farmers this year.

Administration sources also say the petition conflicts with Nixon farm-belt election strategy this year.

Butz has been repeating in speeches that the outlook for farmers in 1972 is the best in many years, that net farm income will rise to a record high and that administration policies are working well.

The co-op people, however, do not agree, insisting in the petition "the majority of farmers today are skirting outright financial disaster every year" because of rising debt and the failure of farm prices to keep pace with soaring expenses.

3 Unknowns Battling Ham'schmidt

By ROBERT SHAW

Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Three political unknowns are fighting for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 3rd District and the right to take on the formidable Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt in the General election.

The Democratic candidates are Guy Hatfield, 65, of Rogers, Howard Guess Cain Jr., 28, of Huntsville, and Milton Emerson Stolberg, 65, of the Newton County community of Wayton.

Hatfield is a retired actor. Cain is a lawyer who passed the bar examination only a couple of days before he entered the congressional race, a businessman and parttime farmer. Stolberg heads a consulting firm that advises retail businesses on how to increase their sales.

Hammerschmidt, the Republican serving his third term, is unopposed in the GOP primary.

The Democratic race in the sprawling, 21-county district of Northwest and West Arkansas has been overshadowed by the races for the U.S. Senate and for the U.S. House from the 4th District where better-known figures are competing.

None of the three candidates has had political experience, although Stolberg, a native of Minnesota who moved to Arkansas 10 years ago, said he flirted with the idea of running for alderman in Chicago in the late 1930s.

Cain is the son of an official in the administration of former Gov. Orval E. Faubus. He considers himself "an average person concerned about government."

Hatfield refers to himself as "a citizen with a duty."

With apparent limited campaign funds, all three are conducting "shoe leader" campaigns trying to win recognition among the voters.

As in past races in the district, an issue is the scenic Buffalo River, which meanders through the area. Hammerschmidt sponsored legislation, signed by President Nixon, that makes the river a nationally protected park, ending years of efforts to dam the stream.

Stolberg has vehemently opposed the park proposal, saying the economic benefits would be marginal while the park is "almost certain to bring criminals to the state on a wide-spread scale" and destroy "Ozark native culture, healthful living conditions and pure air and water."

Hatfield says he is neutral on whether the Buffalo should be dammed, but his disagreement with Hammerschmidt is that the congressman did not consult with his constituents on the issue.

He said Hammerschmidt had sold his constituents down the river "without their advice or consent." He also says the money appropriated by Congress to buy land along the Buffalo is not "one-fifth the amount that good bottomland sells for."

Stolberg has called for an orderly withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam, a limitation on presidential war-making powers, income tax reform and a 50 per cent increase in Social Security benefits. He says he is for prayer in the schools and against busing for integration and amnesty for draft evaders.

McGovern Seeks Large Oregon Vote

Sen. George McGovern, the only major Democratic presidential candidate campaigning for next Tuesday's Oregon primary, is seeking a big vote "to give us the kind of momentum we need" for the crucial California showdown two weeks later.

He sought an additional boost today by scheduling a flight to Phoenix, Ariz., to get the endorsement of United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez, a key figure among the Chicanos who make up 15 per cent of the California Democratic vote.

McGovern counts heavily on the Chavez endorsement, plus the support received Thursday from Coretta Scott King, widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., to win votes from California's Chicanos and blacks in the June 6 primary.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, his chief rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, has decided against campaigning in Oregon, where 11 Democrats, including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, are on Tuesday's ballot. But McGovern is taking nothing for granted in his bid to win the state's 34 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

He drove south from Portland on Friday, visiting lumber, paper and electronics factories in the lush Willamette Valley, then crossed the coastal mountains to speak to longshoremen in North Bend before flying to the southern Oregon city of Medford for the night.

After swinging through California to Phoenix and back to Los Angeles tonight, McGovern returns to Oregon on Sunday for a day and a half of heavy campaigning up to the primary. Of his 10 rivals, only Rep. Patsy Mink of Hawaii has campaigned in Oregon. Kennedy has sought to get his name off the ballot but could not.

As the campaign rolled on, McGovern and Humphrey announced that they have agreed to debate the issues on national television two Sundays before the California primary. The debates will be held March 28 and June 4 on CBS' "Face the Nation" and ABC's "Issues and

It is so easy to play a hand carelessly. All you have to do is to give it a quick look without really seeing if there is any possible problem.

South was very happy with his four-spade contract. He had to lose one heart and the ace and king of trumps. Maybe he could even cash them together and score an over-trick. Therefore South won the diamond lead in his own hand and planked down the queen of trumps.

West took the trick with the king. South looked around hopefully for the ace from East, but East dropped the deuce of clubs.

West led a second diamond. South won and played a second trump to West's ace. Now West put his partner on lead with a heart and East played a third diamond. West ruffed and another game had gone into limbo.

South was unlucky. It took all three trumps in the West hand to beat him but South had also been careless.

He could be sure that the eight of diamonds was a short suit lead. If it were a singleton he could do nothing about it, but if it were a doubleton and West did hold three trumps South could keep East from giving his partner a diamond ruff.

South should have won the diamond in dummy and led a heart. East would play the ace and lead a diamond but West would still have a diamond left. Then South would lead his queen of trumps. West would win and be ready for a diamond ruff but he would not be able to get East into the lead.

Helen and Sue Bottel

The Generation Gap

She Doesn't WANT a Career

Dear Rap:

We've been married seven months. My husband will get his B.A. in June and will either go on to graduate school or find a job. Meantime, he's been sending me to beauty school for six miserable months. My problem is: I don't want to work or even finish the course—it will take me several more months because I've missed so many classes.

I like working with hair, but I want to be a housewife. I love to cook and bake and make a clean, comfortable home. Instead, the house is a mess because I'm exhausted from attending school. My husband and I fight over that.

His part-time job brings enough money to live on—just. He thinks every woman should be trained for a career. Am I selfish to want to be—JUST A HOUSEWIFE?

Dear Just:

When you chose a guy who was still in college, didn't you expect to help out with the finances? At least he gave you a chance to learn a trade you enjoy—so return the favor by giving him a little more rest until he gets his degree.

I'm with your husband: every woman should be trained for some sort of work or career. Even if she prefers to be "just a housewife" (when her husband can afford that luxury) she never knows how things may change.

—SUE

Dear JAH:

Seems to me a girl who truly "loves to cook, bake and keep a clean, comfortable house" won't let "exhausting" part-time classes turn her messy.

Is there a bit of laziness mixed in with your domesticity?

If you quit school and refuse to work now, your husband may never finish graduate school—and this could affect your later life as "just a housewife." A man who holds a Masters usually starts at a higher salary and continues earning more money the rest of his working years. —HELEN

Dear Helen And Sue:

I know it's a no-no to criticize young people, but on the subject of homemade cosmetics I must applaud you, Helen, and slap your wrist, Sue.

I work for a dermatologist and I wish you could see some of the nasty infections he sees as a result of homemade beautifiers. Raw egg can harbor salmonella bacteria and, besides giving you a mean skin condition, it can make you good and sick all over.

The oily pulp of avocado and banana is a great medium to foster the growth of bacteria, especially when it is chilled in the refrigerator, taken out to room temperatures and spread on a warm face, time and again.

A corn meal scrubbing can break surface capillaries.

Even a lemon rinse for hair can cause an infection if there is a scalp eruption. How? The lemon may be crawling with germs from supermarket handling. Cutting into it carries the germs into the pulp and the juice.

So, for heaven's sake, Sue and others I ho go for "natural

Heart Sac Becomes Inflamed

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb: What is pericarditis? What germ is it caused by? What are the possible results if a person had this disease and was allergic to the germ, staph or whatever and had no treatment except for tranquilizers? Could a heart specialist possibly make a misdiagnosis of this type of disease? Could the end result be angina? How do you learn to live with angina at 37? I am now taking medicine (nitro) and must know all the answers if you can tell me.

Dear Reader: The pericardium is the sac that surrounds the heart. The sac itself looks like a large plastic bag. It is really a double-layered sac with one layer of what looks like clear plastic lying directly on the surface of the heart and then extending outward to form the large external bag to encase the whole heart. When the layer that covers the surface of the heart and the underlying heart muscle itself is inflamed, we call it pericarditis.

Inflammation of the sac around the heart can be caused by many things. An individual with pneumonia can have an extension of the infection to involve the sac around the heart. It can also be caused by chemical reactions. Advanced uremia can cause chemical irritation of the pericardium and uremic pericarditis. It can also be caused by an extension of cancer and it can follow a myocardial infarction (heart attack).

If you read my column often, you will know that I have previously explained that the ending "itis" used in medicine means inflammation and all the word pericarditis means is inflammation of the pericardium, just like appendicitis means inflammation of the appendix. The problem can be caused by a wide variety of germs, including tuberculosis.

Many cases of pericarditis are caused by virus infections and are called viral pericarditis. This is probably the most common form. Like most other virus diseases, there are not many things you can do to treat the problem except provide medicine to give symptomatic relief to the patient at the time. This might well include aspirin to control fever, medicines for relief of pain and tranquilizers.

Occasionally a person does have recurrent chest pains after such an episode, because the arteries to the heart muscle pass directly underneath the sac that is attached to the surface of the heart and scarring and fibrosis from pericarditis can put pressure on the arteries and diminish the blood flow to the heart muscle. This can result in angina or chest pain associated with insufficient blood supply to the heart muscle.

Yes, it is often difficult to separate pericarditis from a heart attack and even the best heart specialists in the world can't tell the difference in some cases.

Running of Peakness Today

BALTIMORE (AP) — Tommy Ennis will watch the 97th running of the $150,000-added Peakness today from his vantage point on a ladder in the Pimlico infield.

As soon as the result becomes official, and even as the winning owner, trainer and jockey are being honored nearby, Ennis will begin his ceremonial task.

On a weathervane, which stands atop the replica of the old Pimlico clubhouse which was destroyed by fire in 1966, Ennis will paint the colors of the winning owner on a metal horse and jockey.

"I mix all the colors up for each silk," Ennis said, "and go from there. As soon as the race is official, I throw away all but one, and start painting. I fill in the number on the saddle cloth, and then color the silks."

"The only time I had any trouble," Ennis said, "was when I had to wait about a half hour because of an inquiry."

'One in a Million' Riva Ridge Chases Elusive Triple Crown

RIVA RIDGE, 1972 Kentucky Derby winner. Jockey is Ron Turcotte.

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

BALTIMORE, Md. — (NEA)—It was a morning for pleasure seekers. Riva Ridge basked in it. The sun was soft. The grass looked delicious. And three men, like court attendants, were washing him down after an easy workout. Riva Ridge tossed his neck in cooling delight, swished his wet tail and all but sang in the shower.

Soon, he would indulge in brunch—a goodly munching of that scrumptious grass—and then flop off to nap. Even now, a stable boy was mucking out the bay colt's nearby stall. The job was equivalent to fluffing up a prince's pillow.

Riva Ridge is growing accustomed to royal treatment, or at least to treatment suited to the stakes champion he is.

He could be one of the best ever," said Lucien Laurin. "Maybe one of the best since Man O'War."

Hyperbole may be excusable in this case. Laurin is the trainer of Riva Ridge, Kentucky Derby winner and candidate for the Triple Crown.

"He's so nice to work with, one in a million," said Laurin, a short, gray-haired, gentle 60-year-old Canadian. Laurin has probably seen a million, too. He has been jockey and trainer from the Depression days, when he had to win a race that afternoon to buy a piece of bread that night.

"He's got a champion's disposition," said Laurin. "He doesn't get ruffled. Not high-strung. Nothing bothers him. The other day a horse got loose and started galloping all over the place. He came roaring by Riva Ridge. Riva Ridge just stopped and watched, calm as you please.

"Comin' up for the Derby, I was worried. I didn't know how he'd react, what with the noise of a hundred thousand people and the playin' of 'My Old Kentucky Home'.

"Well, all them other horses was jittery. Riva Ridge was cool. You know, he finished the Derby without hardly sweating. Look there. See the imprint of his

One year later, Laurin called Clark and said, "I'm racing him today. First time out. Bet him to win." Clark was surprised. Bet on a broken-down horse who hasn't raced in a year?

"What happened, after the race," said the racing writer, "was that Clark had to carry his money home in shopping bags."

Johnson. He thought a second.

"But put him in left field."

Husky Luzinski, called The Bull, started this season in left field. Johnson's still on first.

The baseball strike has had a profound effect on Sam McDowell of the Giants. He's changed brands of beer. No longer will ask for "Bud," the brand of Gussie Busch, the owner of the Cardinals who spoke out adamantly against the players.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Bill Rigney, the manager of the Minnesota Twins, is always good for a word, on almost any subject. The fact that almost all the $100,000 ball players, including his own Harmon Killebrew, are in their middle or late 30s, intrigues him.

"I'll tell you what it is. They're not fighting trains. They got planes to get them to the next city right now. Everything's a little better for them. The places they live in, the food, the arrangements. Salaries get to a point where it's more important for them to take care of themselves. Used to be, when a guy was 35, all he thought about was hanging on. Now a Hank Aaron carries the club.

"One other thing, when you got a Willie Mays getting old, you also got a Bobby Bonds around to help him. That takes the pressure off.

Deron Johnson of the Phillies is a 10-year veteran and regarded as a great man to have on the club for morale. He doesn't make waves. Will help the team any way he's asked. So late last season, when the Phillies brought up young slugger Greg Luzinski from the minors, Manager Lucchesi went to Johnson and said he'd like to give the kid some work. Luzinski played first base. That was Lucchesi's situation.

What'd you say to him, Frank. He just ran outside whistling.

Frank Lucchesi got back on the phone.

What'd you say to him, Frank. He just ran outside whistling.

Frank Lucchesi got back on the phone.
